Somnambulism-Thrilling Incident.

An incident of thrilling and almost terrible interest, combining in itself all the palpitating chances of hair-breadth escapes and the strange, romantic ventures of that wierd semblance of life, somnambulism, is thus related men and several persons connected with the by the Detroit Free Press as having occurred Philadelphia Gas Works, were present. Acin that city a few nights ago:

The scene was on Catherine-street, at the residence of Mr. Israel Moreton. At about half-past two A. M. he was awakened by a knocking at the front door, and found a man on the steps, who, in a very incoherent and excited manner requested him to walk across the street and look at the top of his house. He declined, and was about retiring, suspicious of foul play, when his eye caught a moving shadow on front of the opposite house. It indicated that some moving, living thing was walking noiselessly along the narrow ridge of his roof. An indiscribable chill crept over him. The shadow stole across the front of the opposite building, and was lost for a moment opposite building, and was lost for a moment in the darkness, and then crept into view again, returning in an opposite direction, with the same slow, gliding motion. His companion had regained the opposite side-walk, and stood gazing up in silence, seemingly struck speechless with horror, and with trembling steps Mr. Moreton gained his side, when his gaze fell on a form shrouded from head to foot in a long, white night dress, about which a mass of long hair fell in wild confusion.

The spectral form paced slowly to and fro on the narrow ridge-board which covered the appex of the roof, approaching in frightful proximity of the abrupt termination at the ends, and calmly turning about to retrace the distance. The house was a high one, and a mis-step or a step too far would have plunged the night-walker down to certain destruction. The walker occasionally raised her hand to The waiter occasionally raised her hand to her head, as though engaged in thought or troubled with pain. The head always main-tained the same position. A chimney stood directly in the middle of the roof, around which she passed with case, placing one hand upon its top, and walking down the sloping roof to get around. Once in this greatest roof to get around. Once, in this spectral walk, she paused at the edge of the roof, and looked straight ahead. A waving movement of the right hand accompanied the act, when the walk was again renewed. The same spot was reached again a few moments after, when the figure again paused, and again gazed out into the darkness, and then, with a slow motion, stretched out a hand, and with outspread fingers clutched at something which had no existence except in the fevered mind of the sleeper. The other hand was then extended in like manner, and the body went forward in such a way that the upper portion hung over the abyss, while the fingers reached out, until there was no further reaching, and then clutched again quick, convulsive snatch, and were withdrawn. The form was motionless a moment, and then commenced its walk again, continuing as far as the middle of the roof, when it turned toward the rear of the house, and moving down the slope of the roof, was lost to sight. Mr. Moreton recognized the features and form of his servant girl, about eighteen, named Jane Mooney. She descended through a sky-light to her own room. Hastening in, he aroused his wife, and went with her to the girl's room, and found her sitting on the side of the bed, wide awake, and in a state of mind bordering on destraction. She had no knowl-edge of the occurrence, but had been awakened by the noise of her employer entering the house, and found herself standing in the middle of her own room in the condition described. The girl had been suffering from a brain fever, from which she was gradually recover-

The London Globe says in reference to the North-western Boundary dispute:

The claim advanced by the United States is a geographical question, and it is to be settled by the application of geographical science to the terms of the convention of 1846, which established the forty-ninth parallel of north latitude as the boundary between the Territories of the two countries from the Rocky Mountains to the channel which separates Vancouver's the middle of the channel and the Strait of San Juan de Fuca to the ocean. - This is a question which turns upon facts and upon the interpre-tation of a treaty stipulation read by the light of those facts. It was to ascertian the facts that her Majesty's Government appointed Captain Prevost Commissioner; the instructions to those gentlemen were simply a repitition of the terms of the treaty. The question itself is not quite new; it is as old as the present year 1859, and there can be no doubt that the two Governments will see to its just and amicable settlement.

Mount Washington, of the White Mountain group, was the highest peak east of the Rocky Mountains. Butthis honor must now be definitely conferred upon Smoky Mountain, belonging to the Black Mountain group, and situated in Jackson County, North Car and situated in Jackson County, North Car-olina, near the Tennessee line. Professor John Le Conte, of South Carolina College, accompanied by Mr. Clingman and Mr. Buckley, has made accurate barometric ob-servations of the various highs composing this group, during the past summer. These gentlemen, and Professor Guyot, have ascer-tained that North Carolina has no less than fifteen peaks higher than Mount Washing-ton. According to Captain Cram, of the United States Coast Survey, the hight of Mount Washington is 6,293 feet. The eleva-tion of Smoky Mountain is 6,737 feet.

The great problem of the source of the Nile, which has occupied the attention of the world during so many ages, may now be con-sidered as definitely solved. Captain Speke, who has just returned to England from an extended tour in Central Africa, in company with tended tour in Central Africa, in company with Captain Burton, discovered a lake, called by the natives Nyanza, but by the Arabs Ukerewe, which appears to be the great reservoir of the Nile. It extends from two degrees thirty minutes south, to three degrees thirty minutes north latitude, lying across the equator in east longitude thirty-three degrees. Its waters are the drainings of numerous hills which surround it on almost every side. The new lake washes out the Mountains of the Moon as at present existing in our atlases. present existing in our atlases.

Gas Manufactured from Water. It was mentioned a day or two ago that a successful trial of gas, manufactured from water, took place at Wilmington, Delaware, on Saturday evening. A number of scientific cording to the North American, the experiment was so successful—the new gas so much more brilliant than that made from coal-that the Northern Liberties Gas Company has deter mined to substitute this new process for the one it has been hitherto using. The cost of this new gas, it is stated, will be from thirty to fifty cents per thousand feet, and will save nine-tenths of the labor and expense of erecting coal gas works. The theory of the process is said to be as follows: Water, as steam, is decomposed by being passed over red-hot charcoal, and the resulting gases (hydrogen, carbonic oxide, and light car-buretted hydrogen,) are chemically combined with heavy carburetted hydrogen, or light-giving gas, by the decomposition of resin or coal vapor, simultaneously with, and in the presence of, the decomposition of the vapor of water. At the Wilmington Gas Works, are now three water-gas retorts, aggregating only one twenty-seventh of the cubical area of their coal-gas rotorts, yet more productive than the whole of their present coal-gas apparatus, making one thousand two hundred to one thousand eight hundred feet per hour. The gas manufactured is superior in color and strength of flame to that produced from coal Resin is used as the cabonizing element, requiring from twenty-five to forty pounds for every thousand feet of gas, which is free from sulphur or nitrogen, and has an odor rather agreeable than otherwise.

An Auburn Convict.

The fatal error of commencing a life of crime is illustrated in the life and punishment of George B. Moody, who has been confined for two years in the State Prison at Auburn, New York, for fraud and forgery in passing off several fraudulent checks, purporting to be drawn by a Missoui bankinghouse on the American Exchange Bank, New York. His time having expired, he is to be brought on a requisition to Kentucky.

It is said that Moody, since his imprison-ment at Auburn, has conducted himself in the most unobjectionable manner, and has won the confidence and friendship, to a very considerable degree, of the officials. He is employed as a clerk in the hospital.

Letters written by Moody to his wife, since his arrest at Rochester, New York, speak of large deposits of specie, the avails of his forgeries, in the earth, in the neighborhood of Memphis, Tennessee, and West Point, Kentucky; and, in reference to an application of his wife for a divorce, he expresses design to take their only child, a little girl, and sock a home in Italy.

This offender commenced his career at Grand Rapids, Michigan, as a clerk in the Postoffice, where it is charged that he ap-propriated the funds of the office to his own use. He is reputably connected there, and his wife is now staying with her husband's relatives.

Outrage on a Boston Vessel.

Captain Goodridge, of the bark Hazard, arrived at this port yesterday, from the Coast of Africa, reports having been fired into by a British steamer. The following is his sta ment:

On the 8th of May, as we were running north with studding sails on both sides, made a two-masted steamer steering for us, and showing English colors. We run up the American flag to the peak, and it blew out well.
When about a mile off, and being forward of our starboard beam, she fired a gun. on, and in about fifteen minutes she fired a shotted gun. The shot went over our deck, between the fore and main masts. Hove the bark to, and the steamer sent a boat alongside with two officers, who inquired the vessel's name, master, &c. We declined permitting name, master, &c. We declined permitting them to some on board, telling them they had exceeded their orders. Asked them how they came to fire into us, when our flag was up. came to fire into us, when our flag was up. They replied, "D—n your flag—we want to see your papers!" When about leaving, they asked if we wanted them to enter any complaint in their log. We replied "No." Bidding us good-day, they pulled off.—Boston Bee, Oct. 5.

23 During the military encampment Lewiston, Penn., a tragedy occurred, resulting in the death of Mr. Platte of the Sioux Valley Guards. It appears that on Friday night last, an attack by rowdies was apprehended, and the guards were ordered no one pass without the countersign. Ed-ward Mills, a member of the Patterson Infantry, of Juniata County, being on guard, was approached by a man, between nine and ten o'clock, whom he ordered to stand. The man passed on, and Mills, in attempting to charge, stumbled to the ground, the musket being accidentally discharged. The musket contained a large nail, which en-tered the body of the man, who afterward proved to be Mr. Platte. He died a few days after, and Mill was acquitted by the camp

We have news from Venezuela to the 16th ult. The French charge des offaires had been sent out of the country on two days notice. His opposition to the existing government, and participation in the late bloody revolution, are the causes alleged for driving him away. General Rubin, with the govern-ment forces, had taken the town of Mar-guetia, near Laguayra. Barcelona had been retaken, and the government forces were everywhere victorious. The revolutionists, or rather robbers, had committed the most outrageous excesses, murdering and plundering to a fearful extent. From present accounts, however, their triumph is at an end.

AT Mr. Ward, an American, says the London Express, has just patented an inven-tion of a new code of signal telegraphs for the cean marine service, by which he expects to be able to transmit news between America and England in five days. The latest news will be telegraphed from the lighthouse at Cape Race to the passing steamer, on Sunday, which will signal the intelligence to the station at Cape Clear on the following Friday. To New York and London, from these places, the communication will, of course, be over the electric wires, and in this way news will be only five days in transitu between London and New York City. be able to transmit news between America and

A LIFETIME OF SUFFERING-THE SKELETON Man.—At Clarkson, in the State of New York, it has been made known that an aged lady resides, who, for the past thirty years, has been constantly at the bedside of a suffering son, now in his fiftieth year. At the age of twenty he became affected by disease, perhaps from exposure in too frequent swimming; he has been bedridden for full thirty years. Oliver Babcock, this "skeleton man," was born in New England in 1811. His aged father survives, and is devoted in the care of his suffering "boy."
